

NEW ABSTRACT:

Please find the following new abstract:

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A pair of gloves is provided for right and left hands. Each glove is a shaped covering with individual sheaths for each finger and a thumb. Each glove is formed with a front and a back in which one glove has two narrow bands delineated across its front. The front and back of both gloves are each bi-colored or bi-patterned in mutually exclusive portions such that, when worn, and a golf club (not shown) is being held in a correct grip, only portions of one color or pattern are visible to the user. One glove has a substantially circular formation on the sheath for the thumb for location, in use, against a substantially semi-circular formation provided on the front of the other glove. The semi-circular formation is directed towards the sheath for the thumb.